SUMMARY

Jasnoor Nagra is a South Asian multimedia artist currently studying Integrative Arts at York University in Toronto (graduating February 2027). Her work explores her relationship to South Asian culture through the lens of diaspora, working across printmaking, soft sculpture, and painting. Drawing from South Asian art history alongside contemporary visual practices, she creates work rooted in cultural memory, migration, and everyday ritual. Her practice seeks to foster connection across communities while reflecting on how identity is shaped through shared experiences.
